13. Question (Ja)> How can the European Community of Practice Bioeconomy education get in touch with the people that are busy with bioeconomy education?

Answer> We suggest you connect with UrBIOfuture to exchange information and maybe explore opportunities for collaboration

14. Question (Schwabe)> How do you reach primary schools locally, via a European CSA?

Answer> In UrBIOfuture we have held workshops with high school students at local level, leveraging the contacts that our consortium partners have, and we have joined activities organised by other projects. For example, we joined the 4th Conference of Raw MatTERS Ambassadors at Schools that took place in Bologna, Italy, in November 2019, where hundreds of students between 10 and 19 years old participated. Projects like BLOOM (https://bloom-bioeconomy.eu/), URBIOFUTURE (www.urbiofuture.eu) and BIOWAYS (http://www.bioways.eu/) developed several material for schools. Please check also the LIFT Fact Sheet in Bioeconomy education (https://www.bioeconomy-library.eu/bioeconomy-education/) and awareness raising (https://www.bioeconomy-library.eu/awareness-raising/) for good examples and information about these and other relevant projects.
